1. [REDACTED] talked with me about the paper I submitted on the use of ex-employees as consultants. I explained to Walt that this paper had been submitted at the Director's request and that we really weren't recommending much of a change, merely a more formal procedure for identifying departing employees whom we might wish to use as consultants.

2. [REDACTED] talked with me about the paper which Emmett Echols submitted recommending delegation of authority to the Director of Personnel to extend the retirement date of "participants" in our new retirement system for up to one year. I explained to Hank that this was merely a device to avoid a great deal of paperwork which would probably otherwise be necessary between now and 1 July 1966 with the net result being the same.
